The Leadership Institute
Bryant and PwC want high school students to learn more about various areas in accounting in an environment that is both fun and educational. The program is offered with no fees to students who apply and are accepted into the PricewaterhouseCoopers Accounting Careers Leadership Institute.

Participants in the second year of the program are immersed in an exciting learning environment by living on campus for one week and learning through interactions with accounting professionals, case studies, and role play. Bryant University staff and students work closely with you to guide you through the program. Bryant faculty and PwC professionals teach the classes and act as mentors.

Valuable experience
The PricewaterhouseCoopers Accounting Careers Leadership Institute, funded by PwC, is committed to helping high school students explore their career choices. You will spend a day at the PwC offices in Boston where you’ll get an insider’s view into the accounting profession and the firm. You’ll meet and talk to professionals who perform a surprising variety of functions, all in the field of accounting. You’ll learn first-hand what it’s like to work in this field. The institute is also an opportunity for you to meet new people and learn team-building skills as you work together in groups for a variety of projects. Games and exercises will show you how much can be accomplished when individuals with varying talents work together on a task—a valuable lesson for any career you select.

In addition, staff at both Bryant’s Office of Admissions and Financial Aid and the Institute will spend time advising you on the college application process so that you can take full advantage of your options after high school.

What you’ll learn
The lessons you learn at the Institute are gained inside and outside the classroom. Obtain important insights into:
- The role of accountants in society
- Leadership
- Team building
- Careers in accounting
- Innovative technology
- How to apply for college

The PwC Accounting leadership institute is a life-changing experience where students get a chance to see what the exciting field of accounting is really all about. As a first-generation college student who studied and worked in Accounting, I can tell you first-hand that this is a career where you can expand your horizons and make a difference.
